Lay the fish steaks side by side in a shallow dish. Combine the oil, juices, salt and pepper and pour over the fish. Cover and refrigerate 1-2 hours, turning the fish once or twice. Preheat the broiler or prepare a charcoal fire. Drain the fish and arrange on the rack in the broiler pan, or set on the grill over the hot coals. Broil or grill about 5 inches from the heat until just firm to the touch but still moist in the center, 3-4 minutes. Turn the steaks over once. When done, transfer to warmed plates and top each fish steak with a pat of the cilantro-lime butter. Serve immediately.
